LEAGUE HAS POWER TO ADVISE NATIONS

IS NO SUPERSTATE—ONLY CONFERENCE BODY.

FISHER REPLIES TO STAR

Unanimity of Votes In Council Is Required—No Chance For America To Be Overpowered.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, who delivered an address before the Maryville Chamber of Commerce Monday night, makes the following reply to an editorial in the Kansas City Star which opposed the United States joining the League of Nations:

In my forums last week in Kansas City on "the World Court" and "the League of Nations," I have often been asked regarding your editorial of April 18 concerning "Internationalism" and the Japanese immigration question. From the questions which were asked, I infer that your editorial created a wrong impression concerning the League of Nations and its functions.

I absolutely agree with you in opposing any such internationalism as would compel America to accept the dictation of other countries as to its immigration policy. (I may also add that I believe in Japanese exclusion, though I deplore the needlessly tactless way just taken by congress of accomplishing that end.)

But you are hitting at a man of straw. No such "internationalism" exists, or is even proposed so far as I know. That would constitute a superstate, and, as you rightly say in your editorial of April 25, "There is no superstate in Europe." The league is merely a conference body. The utmost it can do (except when specifically entrusted by two disputing states with the duty of arbitrating their dispute) is to advise and, in matters of immigration policy, it cannot even advise. In article 15 and elsewhere, this is provided for.

America and Reparations.

In your editorials of April 21 and 25 you speak of Europe being divided into two camps, each of which wants the United States to help. There is some thing in this. I doubt if it is true of the league and it certainly is not true of the court. But it is true of the reparation commission, which, of course, has no connection with the league or court.

To my mind, however, this is a reason for our being represented in the reparation commission by a vote instead of by an unofficial observer; for in that case, France would not have as it now does have, with Belgium, a majority vote. By refusing to accept a vote on that commission, we have virtually handed the German reparation problem over to the tender mercies of France, which fact has kept all Europe in turmoil ever since and thereby incidentally has impaired her power to buy our farm products and so reduced their prices.

Not only has our withdrawal upset the proper balance of power in the reparation commission, but, what is worse, our absence from the league has greatly intensified France's fear of German aggression and explains, in large measure, her big army policy, her big reparation policy and her Ruhr invasion policy.

The Unanimity Requirement.

But the point I want here to stress is that, even though your objection to America taking sides in European questions were well taken so far as joining the reparation commission is concerned, it can scarcely apply to the league itself. This is not only because the league, unlike the commission, is an advisory, not a deciding, body, but also because the league, unlike the commission, has a requirement for unanimity of votes in the council. Unless every single vote of the ten members of the council (or eleven if America were in) is favorable to giving any specified advice to the sovereign members of the league that advice cannot be given. There is no question, therefore, of one group "outvoting" another group. Both groups must agree or nothing can be done at all.

I am glad that you think "on special occasions it is evident that the United States can take a hand in Europe advantageously for all concerned." This shows that, after all, there is less difference between us than has seemed For it is only a question of how often.

You cite the Hughes conference on the limitation of naval armaments. I agree most emphatically as to its great value. But, for that very reason, the Geneva conferences which have followed up the Washington conference, have been valuable and should

In speaking of this, Mr. Snodgrass has the following to say in this week's edition of the Radio:

"Next Sunday we begin our sixth year. We want to have a message appropriate for the occasion and we covet the presence of every member of the church. It has been a delightful work. The many friends we have made are rich treasures to us, and we believe we have one of the very best churches in the land.

"I just want to call the attention of our members to this fact and urge a large attendance at the morning service. Perhaps we should make more of these anniversary occasions, if we should happen to have any more."

COOLIDGE CAPTAIN OF HIS OWN SHIP

ASSUMES COMPLETE CONTROL OF PARTY MACHINERY.

WILL BE GUIDING HAND

Senator Borah May Make Nominating Speech—Also Mentioned As Permanent Chairman Possibility.

Washington, May 2.—President Coolidge has laid a firm hand on the Republican party organization.

Now that his nomination seems certain, he has taken over absolute control of the party machinery, and henceforth he will be the guiding hand. His assumption of control has been so gradual that the Republican Senatorial clique that ran the Chicago convention in 1920 has had but little voice in shaping the plans for the Cleveland meeting.

Coolidge started by taking the convention from Chicago, followed by naming the temporary chairman, and topped it off by accepting the resignation of John T. Adams as chairman of the national committee, and naming William M. Butler of Massachusetts, his successor..

He is now understood to be desirous of having Senator Borah of Idaho make the nominating speech or of sounding the party call as permanent chairman.

As for the vice-presidency, Mr. Coolidge is said to have thus far expressed no preference, other than the nominee be from the West, and that he be "regular" in everything that the term implies.

ADMINISTRATION IN ANOTHER DEFEAT

MELLON TAX AMENDMENT LOSES 37 TO 36.

TO OPEN TAX RETURN.

Without Debate, Senate Adopts Measure Providing That Information May be Given Committees.

Washington, May 2.—The administration lost another round today in the tax reduction battle in the Senate.

Democratic and "insurgent" forces rejected, by a vote of 37 to 36, an amendment recommended by Secretary Mellon, limiting deduction from net income derived from tax exempt securities.

Democrats charged the Secretary's proposal would have directly taxed tax exempt securities, particularly state and municipal bonds and farm securities.

The Democratic substitute for the administration's flat 14 per cent tax upon corporations, was introduced by Senator Jones, Democrat of New Mexico. The normal tax on corporations' net income was reduced from 14 to 9 per cent under the Democratic plan.

Without debate, the Senate adopted an amendment providing for the opening of tax returns for the inspection of certain Congressional committees. At present, these returns are a secret between the taxpayer and the treasury department. Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, immediately opened a fight for making the returns altogether a matter of public record.

LANDIS DECLARES CRITICISM IS JUST

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER ON WITNESS STAND TODAY.

INJUNCTION IS FILED

Harry M. Daugherty, Former Attorney-General, Would Stop All Activities of Committee

Washington, May 2. — Kenesaw M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, appeared today as a "star" witness in the Wheeler-Brookhart investigation of the Department of Justice.

Landis was called in connection with charges that Phillip Grossman, a Chicago bootlegger, used political influence to escape serving a year's sentence imposed by Landis in 1921, when he was a federal judge in Chicago.

Great applause greeted the veteran judge when he took the stand and began his testimony to the accompaniment of clicking movie cameras.

Landis, when questioned, explained that he had given Grossman a year's sentence on a contempt charge when it was proved that he continued to sell whiskey, after an injunction was issued against his saloon.

Landis lighted up a long thin "stoggie" and puffed contentedly as he testified against Grossman.

Senator Wheeler read a statement that Landis had given newspaper men condemning the pardoning of Grossman by President Coolidge and assailing politicians who urged the elemency.

"It certain's my view," Landis stated.

On cross-examination by Paul Howland, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general, Landis said he did criticise President Coolidge for pardoning Grossman.

"Judge, you don't want to be put on record as criticising the President of the United States," said Howland.

"I don't think Grossman was entitled to a pardon," said Landis. "If you call that criticism, I will have to let it stand."

The crowd applauded him.

Washington, May 2.—Protection from further investigation by the Wheeler-Brookhart committee of the Senate was sought today by former attorney-general Daugherty in a suit filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Daugherty asks the court to declare that the committee had no authority to investigate allegations that he had failed to prosecute violators of the Sherman anti-trust law and the Clayton trade restraint act.

He also asked that telegraph companies be restrained from presenting to the committee copies of telegrams filed by him during the last three years.

HARVE ENGLAND

GOV. HYDE'S FAULTY LOGIC.

If Gov. Hyde's keynote speech before the Missouri Republicans at Springfield embodies his claim for the nomination for Vice President, it rests on an unsafe foundation. The address, so far as it affects both State and national issues, is an apology.

The Governor says his program for reforms and improvements was held up and defeated by the Democrats through the referendum. Like President Coolidge in his New York address eight days ago, the Governor does not "condone or defend the offense of any man who may be guilty of the betrayal or prostitution of the confidence which the party placed in him."

It will be remembered, when Mr. Hyde became Governor in 1921, both the Senate and the House of Representatives were Republican. But the Governor says the "vicious use of the referendum" destroyed his program. The Democrats were to blame for it, he says in substance. In the National program, where the Republicans were in control of all branches of the Government, the Governor says "guilt is a personal and not a party matter."

Under his logic, when is a party responsible? If it controls the two branches of the State Legislature and the executive offices of the administration, is the minority responsible for inability to get the laws past the people? Or is it ultimately because the proper sort of legislation was not passed?

Intelligent men know that guilt is personal; but when there is strong suspicion that things have not operated properly—that there is a probability that fraud, or corruption, or material mismanagement, has been permitted—why should there not be a complete investigation? What difference does it make, in pushing the investigation, whether guilt is personal or impersonal? At the same time that guilt is personal, honesty also is personal. It is not lodged solely within one party.

When dishonesty in administration is pointed out, there can be no justification for not pushing the investigation to an end. It will not suffice to follow the advice of Gov. Hyde, and tone down the investigation. He says that "Some one or more proved unfaithful." How many more? The Governor does not know, nor does anyone else know, and cannot know, until the situation is probed to the end.

Even on those committees to which the Governor complains in general terms because of their investigations, there are a majority of the members of his own party. It is true that some do not listen to the lash of party leaders, but they still are of his party. Farther on he says "party ties are to a large extent sundered. The party harness lies loosely upon many shoulders."

Putting the two statements together, the Governor can hold no one responsible but the members of his own party. If the party ties hang as loosely in the investigation as the Governor claims they do, it surely is an indication that they are following a warm trail.

The Governor's plea is political; it is not statesmanlike. His friends ask that he be nominated for Vice President. His political plea of the issues does not warrant serious consideration of his nomination since the Vice President sometimes becomes President and his vision does not warrant the people taking that change.—St. Louis Star.

SPRING NOT ALL JOY.

Springtime, joyous as it is with the twitter of the birds, the caress of the south wind and the unexplainable urgings to wander, is the season of householder's discontent. A man hates change. A woman loves it.

A man will stick to his old fedora until the crown totters in. A woman wants four hats a season, whether she gets them or not. But in the home, that is where the differences in temperament manifests itself. No woman ever cleans house without moving the furniture about. The library table that has rested in the center of the room is moved to the side.

Father's cozy chair takes a ride and when again he sits down to read it is not at all suited to his liking. Men would go on with the same old furniture they had when they went to housekeeping. But if they have determined wives they don't get by with their conservatism.

Old Guard and Negroes Peeved Over Results of State Convention

Former Dissatisfied Because Their Counsel Was Not Sought by Hyde and Latter Because They Did Not Land Delegate-at-Large.

The following from Springfield was written by Asa Hutson in the St. Louis Globe Democrat:

While Gov. Hyde and the state administration forces drove through their program in the Republican State Convention here yesterday with hardly a ripple of opposition on the surface, there were some mutterings of dissatisfaction among the "Old Guard" leaders whose counsel and advice were not sought.

Some of the old-line Republican politicians wanted Jacob L. Babler, National Committeeman, elected to one of the seven delegates at large. Hyde refused to give Babler a place on the slate. Had Babler attempted to break up the slate, as members of the Republican City Committee of St. Louis asked him to, he would have been unmercifully slaughtered.

Then the Hyde opposition had hoped that E. E. E. McJimpsey of Springfield, one of the "regulars," would be made permanent chairman, and it is known that the members of the subcommittee, which recommended the temporary officers had discussed McJimsey. But in the eleventh hour he was eliminated and Bert G. Voorhees of St. Joseph, an uncompromising opponent of the Old Guard, was substituted for permanent chairman.

Members of the old G. O. P. machine who formerly had manned the steam roller at state conventions had little voice in the management of affairs at yesterday's convention. Some of them got upon committees, but they were in the minority and cut little figure.

Negroes Grumbling.

Negro leaders here were grumbling some because they did not land a representative on the slate of delegates at large, but they were given three alternate delegates. Disagreement among themselves as to who was going on the "Big Seven" dimmed their chances from the beginning.

Gov. Hyde insisted that he was not the convention head—the director of its affairs. He said his control was made possible by a strong organization of Republicans who had taken over the party's destinies in Missouri.

"I can now fade out of the picture," said Hyde, "but the organization which controlled this convention will remain."

This convention was a Hyde convention. No political gathering in recent years in the Republican party has been so completely dominated by one man. The resolutions adopted and every event of the convention reflected his handiwork or the work of his faithful and active lieutenants.

The keynote address by the Governor was a summary of the work of his administration. One State Senator complained because the Governor had failed to give any credit to the legislature for legislation enacted.

The rumblings of dissatisfaction was reflected in the convention story carried by the Springfield Republican, published by McJimsey.

"The keynote speech," said the Republican, "was delivered by Gov. Hyde and was rather a long summary of his administration than a challenge to the Democracy of Missouri for the struggle that will close November 4.

"In the distribution of honors sought by party leaders and delegates to the convention, almost the entire section of Missouri, south of a line drawn from Kansas City to St. Louis went without reward.

"Southwest Missouri, stronghold of Republicans went practically without recognition."

Fifteenth district leaders sought to get a representative on the slate of delegates at large and proposed either C. M. Shartel of Neosho, president of the recent constitutional convention, or former State Senator Howard Gray of Carthage. The claims of Gray and Shartel, which were laid before the administration slate makers were without avail.

St. Louisans Hostile to Hyde.

The St. Louis political chieftains with the exception of Nat Goldstein of the Nineteenth, Herman Menset of the Thirteenth, George Hohmann of the Twenty-second, Circuit Clerk John Schmoll and a few others were hostile to Hyde but they were afraid to start anything. Had they made any open hostile move they stood in danger of losing everything, except Senator Selden P. Spencer, and but few of them wanted him at all. As it was they landed Louis P. Aloe, former president of the Board of Aldermen, as delegates at large, and Mrs. Frank P. Hays for alternate delegate.

They tried it as a last resort!

Mrs. R. M. Stevenson Dies in Hot Springs

Resident of Tarkio A Victim of Heart Disease—Burial At Tarkio.

(Tarkio Avalanche).

The news of Mrs. R. M. Stevenson's death in St. Joseph Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., early Thursday morning was a source of much sadness to her many friends in Tarkio and Atchison County, where she has resided for so many years.

It is presumed that her death was caused by heart trouble as she has been a sufferer from that disease for some time. Mrs. Stevenson's friends have been concerned over her health for almost a year. She has been taking treatment in various hospitals but it was known by very few that her condition was really as serious as it proved to be.

During her long residence in Tarkio she has been very active in club and church affairs. She held the presidency of the Fourth District Federation of Women's Clubs, and held high office in the Missouri State Federation.

Charles Ray Appears at College Tomorrow

Charles Ray is said to do the greatest acting of his entire career in "The Girl I Loved," which will be shown Saturday night at 7:45 o'clock at the College auditorium. The work of the star is given added zest by the fact that, "The Girl I Loved" is the story of the personal love affair of the poet James Whitcomb Riley, as related his poem of that title.

The picture is the quintessence of romance, the tale of two masculine hearts that beat for one girl—one of them fiercely. The ardor of this one (enacted by Charles Ray) brings into the plot many terrific incidents which serve to bring the star forward as an actor of powerful emotional force.

The picture's charm is heightened by one of the screen's most beautiful and talented actresses, Patsy Ruth Miller. She is said to give a fine account of herself in the scenes which carry her through the play in almost equal prominence with the star.

CANDIDATES

If you chance to meet a stranger,
And he offers you his hand,
And seems to be so friendly,
With a smile so broad and bland,
Don't think he is a bandit
Who is after your estate,
He dont intend to hurt you,
He is just a candidate.

He may ask about your family,
Your good wife and little folks,
And tell some funny stories,
Or crack a few stale jokes.
On all the news that's going,
He's strictly up to date,
He can quote the facts and figures,
For he's a candidate.

It may be some fair woman,
You have never even seen,
Will beam on you so sweetly,
You will think she is your queen,
But don't you get to thinking,
She is looking for a mate,
It's your vote that she is after,
For she's just a candidate.

Now wouldn't it be funny, though,
If these pre-election dears,
Would always be as charming,
As they are in campaign years,
So friendly and so pleasant,
Oh! wouldn't that be great,
They wont know us in December,
For they're just a candidate.

Russell Skidmore Hit With Ball Bat

(Barnard Bulletin).

Russell Skidmore, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Skidmore, was badly hurt Tuesday while on the play grounds at the noon hour. Harold Goforth had stopped at the school House on his way to work to join the school children in a game of ball. One of the smaller boys had given their place at the bat to Harold and in swinging at the pitched ball the bat slipped from his hand striking Russell in the face between, and a little above the eyes. The nost was broken, a gash cut below one eye and on the forehead.

Harold picked the boy up and carried him to the school house where a doctor was called. He was then taken to the Chas. Humberd home where Dr. Humberd with the assistance of Supt. Adams, dressed the wounds. Something like twelve or thirteen stitches were necessary in patching up the face. He appears to be getting along nicely and while some scars will no doubt stay with him throughout life it is not thought that any serious results will follow.

The True Story of Woodrow Wilson

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

CHAPTER X.

Why Woodrow Wilson First Opposed And Then Favored Woman Suffrage.

Woodrow Wilson's attitude toward the opposite sex was one of chivalrous admiration. He was stimulated always by the conversations of brilliant women and never seemed wittier than in the company of alert men and women. His conversation was often eloquence itself.

Almost always in private talks on and even in public speeches Mr. Wilson referred to a woman as a "lady" or to women as "ladies." To his mind a woman was something finer than man, finer than politics, finer than life as men lived it. She was a creature to be exalted, put on a pedestal, worshipped, cared for and protected. The idea of woman going into politics, business and the professions, four square with a man was somewhat offensive to his sensibilities.

Mr. Wilson's prejudices against woman suffrage were founded partly on his belief that the only women interested in woman suffrage were the aggressive, masculine-like, hard-voiced type which was all that in his southern tradition a woman should not be. He actually encountered such types in the early suffrage campaigns and disliked them.

This attitude was continued and his conversion delayed to some extent by the action of the militant suffragettes in picketing the White House in 1916. The militants in England by their violence had confirmed his belief that the type of woman fighting for suffrage was offensive. He had for many years been opposed to woman suffrage. In 1912 just as he became President-elect he said to a friend:

"The principal objection to giving woman the ballot is that they are too logical. A woman's mind leaps instantly from cause to effect, without any consideration whatever for what lies between. She thinks too directly to be enfranchised—en bloc. She would run into all sorts of trouble.

"For instance a woman's mind works like this: If she were voting and taking an active part in politics as men do, and if she was desperately anxious to accomplish a particular thing she would ignore every obstacle that lay in her path and try to get it by instant direct action. Now, in politics or in life you must take cognizance of obstacles, if there are any. Logically they ought not to be there. You cannot always proceed in a direct line. You must meet obstacles as they arise, and deal with them the best way you can, and get around them toward your goal. A woman will not do that. If she can not do directly and immediately what seems to her logical, she won't play. That is the reason I think it inadvisable to give the women the ballot, now."

Two of Woodrow Wilson's daughters—Margaret and Jessie—were in favor of woman suffrage. His youngest daughter, Eleanor, who later married the Secretary of the Treasury, William Gibbs McAdoo, was not at first a suffragette.

The two daughters who favored the cause of suffrage constantly endeavored to persuade Mr. Wilson to change his mind. Three outsiders who were adroitly trying to convert Mr. Wilson by the slow process of breaking down a prejudice, were Mrs. Carrie Chapmen Catt; Mrs. Anna Howard Shaw and Mrs. Helen H. Gardener. He later appointed Mrs. Gardener to be a member of the Civil Service Commission.

When Mr. Wilson finally yielded to the arguments of the suffragettes he said to a friend:

"When I find two of my daughters such ardent suffragettes, passionately devoted to the cause and when I find also such refined cultured ladies as Mrs. Catt, Mrs. Shaw, and Mrs. Gardener equally devoted and conscientious, I must concede that some of my prejudices were unreasonable, and that the desire for the ballot can not be limited to the relatively few agitators. A cause which could enlist the enthusiastic, devoted idealistic support of such ladies must be wholesome."

In this connection it is worth while perhaps to relate the inside story about the picketing of the White House and Mr. Wilson's part in the incident which the militant suffragettes always charged was tyrannical. They blamed him for throwing them into jail. To them Mr. Wilson was represented as furiously indignant and as employing the powers of the Presidency to fight back at them.

The actual facts are that Mr. Wilson did none of these things. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia, in whom the police power is vested in Washington, repeatedly urged him to sanction a breaking up of the picketing of the White House. Repeatedly Mr. Wilson said to them:

"Let them alone. They don't worry me a particle. If they derive any satisfaction out of parading about the White House or standing with their banners for goodness sake let them do it. I not only do not object but I never think about it except when I ride through the gates in the afternoon on my way for a drive. Let them picket to their heart's content."

Later on when the United States severed diplomatic relations with Germany and an international crisis was growing, the District Commissioners sent for the leaders of the militant suffrage group and appealed to them to forego picketing because it looked as if the United States would enter the war and it was desirable for all forces of the nation to appear united. They declined. After war was declared the appeal was made again and once more the Commissioners urged the President to permit them to break up the parades and the picketing but he refused. At none of these conferences did he reveal the slightest irritation about the picketing. His attitude on the other hand was one of amusement. His eyes twinkled and he chuckled as he talked.

One day an unusually large crowd gathered in front of the White House and attacked the suffragettes. The police reserves were called out and it was with difficulty that the militants were saved from bodily harm. This finally became a regular occurrence in front of the White House as the clerks were leaving the government departments at 4:30 o'clock. Major Raymond W. Pullman, Superintendent of Police, and himself an ardent believer in woman suffrage for years, was accused of inciting the rioters, but he was really trying to protect the picketers from harm. Appeals to Mr. Wilson were of no avail. Finally the Secret Service, charged under the law with the duty of protecting the White House, took the initiative and co-operating with the police caused the arrest of the suffragettes. This of course was just what they wanted. Mr. Wilson had said: "Don't arrest them, that is exactly what they want." In police court the judge, out of patience with the seriousness of their performance sentenced the women to sixty days. That also was what they wanted. They then started hunger strikes and began a campaign of publicity about their alleged ill-treatment in the workhouse, whereupon Mr. Wilson stepped in and pardoned them.

Instead therefore of being an ogre who persecuted the suffragettes, President Wilson was the one man in the situation who was tolerant, who refused to give his consent to their arrest, and who pardoned them after they were sent to jail.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed please find receipt for $27.56 for check received in payment of the water charges for the quarter now due, for which we thank you.

Your political greetings enclosed in your letter to me, noted. It is true, the sheriff's office is a very important one in every county, and every voter ought to consider getting the best possible. From my dealings with you, I believe you possess all the requirements to fill this ofice "Honesty and Fairness" to all. My only objection I can cite against you is that you are on the wrong ticket. Such a man as you ought to belong to the Democratic party. Although I never have let party lines interfere with my voting, I always try to pick out the man I think best for the office, and if I were in Maryville you could surely count on my vote.

Well, Mr. Holt, I wish you success, and hope the people in Nodaway County will see fit to give you a chance to show them what a "Good Sheriff" means.

With very best wishes, I am,
Very truly yours,
JAS. J. MURRAY.

Shall the Philippines Be Free?

Ira Nelson Morris, President, Uncle Sam's Voters, Washington, D. C.

Recently the Philippine question has been much in the public view because of the appeal of the island inhabitants and of the representatives of the islanders in Washington for independence, and the reply of President Coolidge to the appeal.

It is announced that Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of the Filipinos during their struggle for freedom before the Americans ended Spanish rule in the islands, and later their leader against the forces of the United States, may be a member of a mission to Washington in the near future to present the point of view of the people.

After the Spanish war, it will be recalled, there was a great deal of opposition to American control of the islands. The conflict raged in Congress for a year or more, and finally the "anti-imperialists" were defeated. The Philippines were taken over and a process of "benevolent Assimiliation" was instituted.

Since then there has been a succession of governors-general, among them Chief Justice Taft, the late Judge Ide, W. Cameron Forbes and the present incumbent, General Leonard Wood. For the most part the relations between the officials representing the United States and the native Filipinos had been excellent until General Wood assumed control. There has, however, been widespread opposition to him in the islands, and the movement for independence has assumed larger proportions since he took office. The Moro rebellion and the reported rise of the "K. K. K," a native society, have been instances of dissatisfaction, quite apart from the resignations of native officials and the strained relations between other functionaries and Governor General Wood.

Public Affairs presents herewith the claims of the Filipinos that they should be free, and in a parallel column the reasons advanced by President Coolidge and others for the retention of American sovereignty over the islands.

YES.

1. The Filipinos established the first republic in the Far East, 25 years ago, says Manual Roxas, speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives; "but it was supplanted by a colonial regime despite their protests. A government was thus instituted without consent of the governed."

2. It was only assurance of independence that made American occupation tolerable, Mr. Roxas goes on to say. "But with the fulfillment of the pledge so long deferred, further subjection of the Filipino people . . . . is a negation of American ideals of freedom."

3. The Filipino people have enjoyed a large measure of autonomy for seven years, and President Harding declared that the Filipinos had made a more rapid advance than any other people in the world during the last few years. Filipinos had practical control of the island during the World War, say the island legislators in their appeal for freedom.

4. The government has functioned successfully in the hands of the natives, and President Harding said to the second Philippine mission, in 1922, "No backward step is contemplated, no diminution of your domestic control is to be sought." Yet, the Filipinos say, "Governor General Wood has set at naught all the understandings the Filipino people have had with the American Government."

5. The Wood imbroglio emphasizes the urgent need that the Philippine question be settled, the Islanders say. "A reactionary and militaristic rule is a flagrant violation of the time-honored policy of the American Government toward the Philippines. It calls back to life old misunderstandings that are now fortunately buried," says the Filipino petition addressed to Congress.

6. The promises of this country toward the Philippines should be kept, says Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner. Under the Jones law of 1916, the United States, he says, was to withdraw its sovereignty over the Philippine Islands as soon as a stable government had been established. That condition, he says, has now been met.

7. Government at a distance is difficult. It is much more convenient and satisfactory for the Filipinos to govern themselves than to be governed by a government ten thousand miles from them. Filipino welfare demands self-government, say the Filipino legislators; and so too does the pledged word of America.

8. The House Committee on Insular Affairs has voted in favor of Philippine independence, by endorsing, 11 to 5, the Cooper-La Follette resolution which provides for delegates to a constitutional convention, upon the adoption of which the United States is to withdraw its sovereignty and the Philippine Republic is to be recognized by this country.

NO.

1. Secretary Weeks thinks the Philippines should be held for another quarter century. He said that he had received a petition from leading Moros opposing independence. Many things must be adjusted, he said, before independence and some warning should be given.

2. The Filipinos would lose financially by independence in Mr. Weeks' opinion. "We have placed in this country $70,000,000 of bonds on a 4½ per cent basis," he said. "They sold at pretty near par. That alone saves for the Filipinos from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 a year. I want to say if anything is done by the Congress looking to independence in the early future, provision should be made that those bonds will be protected. Otherwise they would immediately drop to perhaps 65 or 70."

3. Mr. Weeks also says they need capital in the Philippines and can not get it as an independent nation. "I would not go into an untried country and untried government with my money to invest it; and the reason it does not go in now to a greater extent is because of the uncertainty of the situation, the feeling that we are likely to get out."

4. American interested in business enterprises in the Philippines do not want independence to come. Indeed, Senator Robinson urged that the larger American investments became the greater would be the opposition to getting out, and Mr. Weeks felt that a definite time should be fixed.

5. The Philippines are spared many burdens under present conditions, says President Coolidge in his reply to Commissioner Roxas. He says that they are protected against aggression and need keep up no large military establishment. Independence would impose many burdens upon them and they are better off without it.

6. The Government of the United States would not feel that it had discharged its obligations to the Filipino people if it gave them independence at this time, says President Coolidge. The Philippines, he says, need assurance from interference from the outside and from turmoil within, and this country should guarantee that for the present.

7. "The strongest argument for independence," says Mr. Coolidge, is the unworthy argument that it would advantage the United States. "The American people will not evade or repudiate the responsibility they have assumed in this matter. The American Government is convinced that it has the overwhelming support of the American nation in its conviction that present independence would be a misfortune and might easily become a disaster."

8. "Ideals of democratic-republican government" have been realized as it is, says Mr. Coolidge, so why change matters? The Filipino people, not the Americans, have been the gainers under American occupancy of the islands, and the Filipinos should not undertake a course that would make it appear that concessions already made have been premature.

9. The United States is without power under the Constitution to alienate the Philippines, the National Republican contends.

Mrs. O. T. Fair with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Fisk and baby daughter, Eleanor Fay, left this morning for their home at Marietta, Ohio, after a three weeks' visit at the home of Mrs. Fair's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Angell, on East Third street. Miss Nellie Fair, who accompanied them, remained for a longer visit at the Angell home.

Services for Dow Cook This Afternoon

A large crowd was in attendance at the funeral services of Dow Cook, who died Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, at the First Christian Church this afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. Robert L. Finch of Des Moines, a former pastor of the church assisted by the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass. The members of the bar attended the services in a body, Dow Cook's uncles, L. C. Cook and E. G. Cook, being members of the bar.

Deb Strong and family moved yesterday from Conception Junction to 422 East 7th street in this city. Mr Strong will open next week a barber shop in Maryville on the North side of the square. He will also make application for a pool hall license in the same building formerly occupied by John Shonley. It was understood Strong will have no opposition in getting a pool hall license here.

Among out-of-town visitors in Maryville today were Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer, Burlington Junction; Charles Hocker and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hocker of uilford; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wiley, and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Burch, Pickering; Mrs. E. C. Gooden and Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards, Parnell; Cecil Hayes, Clearmont; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Johnson, Quitman; Mrs. L. C. Shull, Maitland; and C. A. Clark and son of Blanchard, Ia.

LEAGUE HAS POWER TO ADVISE NATIONS

have been attended by America. The league is simply a continuing conference and can therefore accomplish more than a single conference, such as the Hughes conference.

World Court And Supreme Court

You say the world court cannot be expected to succeed as well as our supreme court, because the supreme court has the authority of the nation behind it. In a broad, practical sense your contrast is true as between the two courts at the present time. But if we conpare the present world court now only two years old, with our supreme court in it infancy, the contrast is quite the other way. In its early days, our supreme court commanded far less respect and was definitely flouted by West Virginia and Pennsylvania. No such black eye has yet been given to the international court. Nor should it be forgotten that our supreme court has no power of enforcing its decisions between the states. It relies only on their honor and public opinion.

Surely there is no objection to our joining the court as proposed by Hughes, Harding and Coolidge. If it does not accomplish all that could be wished, it can do no harm, for, in joining, we would not give the court compulsory jurisdiction, but reserve the liberty of action which you so highly prize, and so reserve to ourselves the decision in each concrete instance whether to submit the dispute to the court or not.

Nor can there be any ground for apprehension from our sitting in with the league as proposed in the Bok peace award without a vote and without accepeting any obligation, but as you say, retaining freedom of action absolutely.

Irving Fisher.

GARY IN PLEA FOR STATE SUPPORT

WOULD COMPLETE STATE HIGHWAY SYSTEM BY TAXES.

FOR LICENSE INCREASE

Also Favors 2-Cent Levy on Gasoline —In Address at Meeting of the Missouri Association.

St. Louis, May 2.—A plan to complete the 7,640-mile state highway system without another state-wide bond issue was approved here yesterday by Theodore Gary of Kansas City, chairman of the state highway commission.

Mr. Gary explained some of the details at a chamber of commerce dinner last night for the out-state members of the Missouri Association, holding its first annual meeting here.

The funds to complete the road system, of which probably not more than one-half can be finished with the present 60-million-dollar bond issue, is to be obtained from a 2-cent gasoline tax and increasing the motor license registration fees 50 per cent. At a conference here the finishing touches were being placed on the initiative proposal to obtain the additional funds. Initiative petitions probably will be ready for circulation before the end of the month.

Provide 5 Million.

"The 2-cent gasoline tax should provide about 3 million dollars additional revenue a year," Mr. Gary explained, "and the 50 per cent increase in motor license fees an additional 2 million dollars. This would provide sufficient money for Missouri to complete the entire highway system in the time prescribed when the bonds were voted, or about 12 years. It is impossible to say now how much the completed highway system will cost because of changing costs."

The plan now is for the Automobile Club of Missouri to take the lead in circulating the initiative petitions. Aid is expected from the Automobile Club of Kansas City and other associations interested in speeding up the road program.

At the conference it was decided to include all proposals to obtain more revenue in one initiative proposition to be submitted to the voters next November. The proposals are the 2-cent gasoline tax, the 50 per cent increase in motor license fees and authority to issue 15 million dollars in bonds each year until the remaining bonds of the present issue are sold.

Good Roads Abroad.

Mr. Gary returned recently from three months in Europe and Africa.

"I found the roads built by the French and British in Northern Africa and Egypt better than those in Missouri," he said. "The motor traffic was surprisingly large.

"In Missouri, the owner of a Ford pays $7 a year license fee to the state. In Italy the license fee is $200 for a Ford; and gasoline costs about 50 cents a gallon."

"I made a very pleasing discovery in Italy. Highways that now pass through towns and cities are being changed to run outside the population centers. They now are doing there the very thing we did in laying out the road system in Missouri."

Will Visit in Honolulu.

According to the Skidmore News, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Miller and daughter, Eula, are planning to visit Erman Miller in Honolulu, during the month of June. They will leave Skidmore about May 24 and sail from San Francisco May 28. They will return via Los Angeles. Mr. Miller is teaching in the Mid-Pacific Institute in Honolulu and will be there another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sisson went to Kansas City this morning on a short visit.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

(By O. G. Null)

Roy McMullen returned Wednesday from Siam, Iowa, where he had been for a few days at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Emma McMullen, who has been seriously ill for several days. Mrs. McMullen is reported to be somewhat improved at this time.

Mrs. H. J. Cline of Bloomdale neighborhood was taken to the hospital at Maryville on Thursday, where she will take treatment for an abscess which has been troubling her for some time.

Mrs. A. L. Estes and son are visiting with relatives in Hopkins this week.

Orlen Kelley and Mrs. E. O. Wray were called to Maryville the first of the week by the serious illness of their mother, Mrs. H. J. Kelly, who was taken to the hospital Tuesday, and underwent a noperation on Thursday.

Ed McKee, who has been employed in the Alexander grocery and restaurant for the past year and a half has resigned his position effective May 1. Mr. Alexander has not engaged any one for the place as yet.

Alex Swaney, who operates the Dr. Wallis farm just north of town, has lost six fattening steers this week and has eight others affected by blindness caused presumably by poisoning. A barn in the feed lot was painted about two weeks ago and it is the opinion o fthe veterinarians who were called that the cattle licked the fresh paint and were poisoned by the lead in it. One of the animals was dissected and the stomach and bowels were found to be badly inflamed and that peronititis had set in which was the immediate cause of death. The cattle are about a year old and have been on full feed for some time.

On Wednesday Harvey Howard of Mozingo Valley neighborhood sent his 10-year-old son to Pickering in a road cart drawn by a Shetland pony. While a sack of coal was being placed in the cart the door of the coal bin was blown open, frightening the pony, causing her to break the hitch strap and run away. In crossing the railroad track just north of the depot the pony tripped and fell, breaking one front leg in the knee joint so badly that she will have to be killed. Fortunately, the boy was not on the cart when the runaway occurred and thus escaped injury.

The showers last Friday and Saturday were rather spotted, being heavy in some neighborhoods and quite light in others. They did a great deal of good, however to the small grain and pastures.

Quite a number of farmers are planting corn this week, even though the weather is a little cool. Corn which was planted last Thursday is said to be sprouting nicely and if the weather continues to warm up, wil soon be coming through the ground.

School Notes.

The Senior class gave a 6 o'clock dinner Wednesday evening in honor of the members of the Junior class, who took part in the class play.

The following were present: Gracie Ulmer, Roy Harrington, Virgil Zook, from the Junior class and John Gray from the Sophomore class, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Geyer, Miss Lola Moore, Misses Pauline Swinford, Hildred Hinton, Crystal Copeland, Bess Kemper and Forrest Smith.

Forrest Smith has returned to school after several days' absence on account of sickness.

Thursday, May 1, was observed as annual "Field Day" by the students of the high school. This takes place of the old "Walk Out" day.

The entire student body went to Boyd's grove north of town, where games were played and a good time enjoyed until noon when a picnic lunch was served.

Virginia Cain visited high school on Wednesday afternoon.

The freshman class won a debate from the Sophomore class on Wednesday afternoon. Both teams showed great ability. The Sophomore team was, Katie Lett and Evaline Ashford. The Freshman team was Olive Boyd and Earl Lock.

Methodist Church.

Don't forget quarterly conference at 2 p. m. Saturday, May 10, and preaching by Dr. Burris Sunday morning, May 11.

Prof. Geyer's class entertained the Sunday School in a very pleasant manner Wednesday evening. They had an entertaining program, followed by fruit salad and cake. These monthly meetings are favored with the opportunity to attend. The next one will be a picnic supper.

Every pulpit in the Missouri conference is to have a new voice in the launching of the Missouri Conference Advocate. This is a campaign for a million dollars to endow our college and provide a retirement fund for our retired ministers and their widows and dependent children. Pastor Lane Douglas will preach at Bolckow at 11 o'clock Sunday and the Rev. J. A. Foutch will occupy the pulpit here. Let us give him a good hearing. The financial canvass for the college will be made in June.

Christian Church.

There will be the usual services next Lord's Day, with a fine large Sunday School if everyone is in his place. And we want you there to hear the announcements for the following Sunday. The morning sermon will be appropriate to the Spring time with its picnics and "Call of the Wild;" subject, "The Gospel of Out Doors."

How many can tell how we got our Bible? A man once asked me if Martin Luther wrote it. This is a question of great importance to the general public, and we are going to tell the story of the Bible next Sunday night, using a chart for illustration. If you have never thought of this before, do so now, and come to church next Sunday.

The choir is planning something different for Mother's Day, in the form of a musical program, details of which are to be announced next week. All singers will meet at the church next Sunday afternoon. This is very important as many are busy and cannot meet thru the week.

The preacher would be glad to receive the names of any who may consider taking membership with the church on Mother's Day. Why not let this be a great decision day when Christ enters your life in a definite way. Or, there are those in the community who ought to unite with the church by letter or statement, and let your light shine. Will you not speak to the pastor about it? We will be more than glad to talk the matter over with you.

Bearcat Tracksters to Invade Tarks' Camp Next Monday

The Bearcat track squad will engage in a dual meet with Tarkio on Monday afternoon at Tarkio. The Bearcat squad was defeated by a large margin in the dual meet against the Tarks last year at Maryville and so are anxious for revenge on the cinder paths this year.

Coach H. Frank Lawrence has a track squad this year that is expected to cop several events in the State classics and should break even with the Tarks in the meet Monday afternoon.

The reports from the Tarkio track squad indicates that Tarkio is strong in the dashes and field events while the Bearcats will furnish strong competition in the middle distance events, relays and field events. The squad that wil make the trip to Tarkio Monday has not yet been announced.

In the dashes Robey, Persinger Captain Runyan and Steiger are expected to carry the S. T. C. Colors. In the quarter-mile event Coach Lawrence has especially strong material from which to choose. Davenport, George Smith, and Profit are the best bets in this event Davenport will probably run the half mile event and Smith and Profit the quarter-mile run. For mile runners John Smith has clocked off some fast time for this distance and Holt makes a strong second bid.

Maryville should crop both first and second in the javelyn throw. Culp and Joy have both flung the javelin at a better mark than the present state record in practice.

Beam, Joy and Peoples are the candidates for the jumping events.

The trip to Tarkio will be made in cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Till Breit and family of Guilford were in Maryville today.

Mrs. Blanche Lawler in Fashion Show

Former Employe Of Yehle Dry Goods Store Participates In Style Event Held In California.

Mrs. Blanche Lawler, who was formerly connected with the Yehle Dry Goods store in Maryville, participated in an informal fashion show held recently at the Flintridge Country Club at Pasadena, California. The affair was held in connection with a showing of the new type Dodge Brothers motor cars. The Pasadena Star-News of April 24 contained six pictures of the models and cars and an extended account, excerpts from which follows:

Beautiful Flintridge Country Club, where an important golf tournament is being held this week, was the setting for an informal exposition of the new type Dodge Brothers motor cars and smart new things in milady's wear the first of the week.

The beautiful young women who wore the smart things from the Tooker-Jordan's upon the occasion of the informal fashion show, too, were just the type of charming American girls who know what kinds of clothes to wear and how to wear them, that one sees at these affairs. They were Miss Pauline Musgrove, Mrs. Blanche Lawler, Miss Katherine Cleveland and Miss Frances Giltner.

Each young woman wore two different costumes, with appropriate hats from the Tooker-Jordan store. Women readers doubtless will be interested in descriptions of the costumes worn. Sports wear for mornings and appropriate afternoon costumes were shown. Mrs. Lawler's sports dress was a banana-shade Roshanara crepe sleeveless dress, featuring the new round neck and carry a bouchle scarf in the same shade of yellow. She wore it with a perky Rande sport hat of banana shede felt. Her afternoon costume was an orchid georgette, with a knife-pleated, three-tier skirt with Irish lace on each flounce. The hat to match was a Charlotte Haibe leghorn bound in orchid taffeta and trimmed with Val lace.

Recommend Charge at the Tourist Camps

Secretaries Believe Expense of Maintenance Should Be Paid By Those Using Grounds.

Of the cities represented at the fifth annual convention of the secretaries of commercial organizations in Missouri, which was held in Jefferson City it was found that in all the cities represented which had tourists camps only three of the camps were free. It was strongly recommended that a nominal charge be made at the camps sufficient for their maintenance.

The opinion at this meeting was that a tourist camp should be exactly what the name implys—not a modern outdoor hotel. It should have plenty of space to prevent crowding, should be well lighted to assure a feeling of friendliness and to prevent petty thievery, making it easy for police protection. It should have plenty of water, six to ten hydrants, so that the tourists will not have to line up and await their turn to get water. It should have ample toilet facilities, well located and kept in a sanitary condition. A shower bath is a feature which adds greatly to the comfort and reputation of the camp, for it is most refreshing after a long day's drive.

Ample cooking facilities should be provided, preferably gas, for which tourists are willing to pay. It was stated that making a camp free has a tendency to cheapen it and a charge of twenty-five cents was recommended.
